Holistic Treatment Aftercare Advice

MASSAGE

Mr Mike O'Donoghue

Tel: 01443 229330

Massage and General Health

Introduction. I hope you enjoyed your recent massage from Mike. Please take a few minutes to read these notes which will help you gain the maximum benefits from your session.

Massage is a holistic therapy; this means that it should not be considered as a separate part of your routine in isolation - rather as being intrinsically linked to every other part of your body, mind, lifestyle and health.

General Health and Fitness. Brief pointers will have been provided during your service and are summarised below. If you need any more in depth advice, this can be provided by Taff:

- Drink at least 5 large glasses of water a day.
- Take regular exercise.
- Eat a healthy diet including fresh food.
- Set aside time for relaxation and enjoyment.
- Laugh ☺

Relax!

Aftercare

After Massage. Be aware of the effects that treatment can have on your body. Remember, massage should:

- Boost your circulation.
- Release toxins into your body systems.
- Balance your energy and emotional systems.
- Boost your digestive system.
- Assist your immune system.

Therefore, in the 12 hours after treatment, you should:

- Relax - save any new found energy for the healing processes that may require it.
- Drink plenty of water.
- Eat lightly and avoid excess alcohol.

Side Effects. Despite all the benefits of massage, several side-effects are possible. These are quite normal and nothing to be alarmed about as long as you are aware of the possibilities. These include:

- Tiredness / headache / dizziness.
- Excess urination / flatulence.
- Emotional swings.
- Increased perspiration.
- A temporary worsening of the symptoms of medical conditions - this is a normal part of the holistic healing process.
